10:00 – 10:15	Arrival/refreshments	All
10:15 – 10:45	Equality and Diversity Training representation Martha Kember is studying for an EdD and her research focus is on how people with impairments are represented in equality and diversity training within HE. She will be sharing her rationale, intended approach and how we can contribute.	Martha Kember Head of Learning & Development at the University of Hull
10:45 – 12:15	Knowledge Share and Updates Career Pathways for Professional Services Staff Earlier this year Sophie called on the SDF community to share their experience on developing career pathways/guidance for professional services staff. The response for information on this topic was huge and resulted in a specific event – with over 40 HEI representatives attending – taking place. Sophie will share with us what was discussed, common identified challenges, potential approaches, and the actions generated. Technician Commitment The Technician Commitment remains high on many HEI's agendas, as such the University of Newcastle recently hosted an event for Technical representatives and OD/SD leads to share good practice, expand training opportunities and take advantage of the toolkits, development, and proposed career pathways available through the National Technician Development Centre (NTDC). Mel will share with us the outcomes, collaborative opportunities, outcomes and next steps generated from the event.	Sophie Sowerby Deputy Head of Learning and Organisation Development Durham University Mel Leitch Technical Manager Institute of Neuroscience University of Newcastle

	Job Crafting For those of you who attended the NEYSDP session in June we were introduced to Rob Baker and the concept of job crafting - an approach that enables people to personalise their approach to work and make work more meaningful. The University of Leeds have invited Rob to conduct a number of (pilot) workshops implementing this concept with the Technician community as it is something we are considering to roll out to support the Career Development focus of the Technicians Commitment. Katie will share how the pilot went and what it entailed.	Katie Leeman Organisational Learning Partner University of Leeds
12:15 – 12:30	Advance HE Update Judith will update us on the current status and development of Advanced HE.	Dr Judy Harris Advance HE
